A banquet today will recognize student Homecoming representatives and announce the king and queen. Alumni awards also will be presented including Service to Community, Service to Youth, Service to the Church, Service to Profession, The Henry and Ruby Dodd Memorial Award and Outstanding Alumnus of the Year.

Saturday is filled with reunions for the classes of 1971, 1976, 1981, 1991, 1996, 2001 and 2006. Saturday chapel is held in Old Chapel Hall and will be followed by band, University Singers and Chorale performances.

Homecoming culminates with the Lion and Lady Lion basketball games Saturday. Pride Walk from the Commons to the Brewer Sports Center at 11 a.m. Immediately following is tailgating, which includes a number of child-friendly activities such as face painting and games. The Lady Lions will play the University of Mobile at 1 p.m. and the Lions will play Shorter University at 3 p.m.

Empowerment walk

Members of Statewide Organizing for Community eMpowerment will walk to raise awareness of community justice issues at 9 a.m. Saturday. The walk will start at 1029 Campbell St., go down North Highland Avenue and turn around at Allen Avenue to complete a two-mile route.

According to a news release, the Walk for Justice brings people together from all over Tennessee who care about: Improving the quality of life in communities; building a green-collar economy attracting high-paying, sustainable industry jobs; creating racist-free communities where all people are empowered; protecting the environment; preserving Tennessee's rich heritage for generations to come; and defending the rights of local residents to have a say in what goes on in their communities.

Money raised at the walks will support SOCM's grassroots efforts.
